DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-52 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yamashita et al (5,555,362) further in view of Takebe (6,356,314).

With regard to claim 1, Yamashita et al discloses extracting means for extracting a plurality of partial images from an original image (see col. 3, lines 35-40); generating means for combining the plurality of partial images extracted by extracting means (see col. 6, lines 34-37); and indicating means for indicating the combined image generated by generating means (see col. 3, lines 53-58).

Yamashita et al does not explicitly call for generating a combined image smaller than the original image. However, in the same field of endeavor Takebe (see col. 4, lines 9-15) teaches this feature. It would have been obvious to incorporate the teaching of Takebe's image synthesizing system into Yamashita et al system. The motivation for doing so is to synthesize a sub image region of main image and display within a specific display region (see abstract of Takebe).

With regard to claim 2, Yamashita et al discloses dividing means for dividing original image into a plurality of image blocks (see Fig. 3); and obtaining means for obtaining the partial image from each of plurality of image blocks (see col. 4, lines 18-22).

With regard to claim 3, Yamashita et al discloses dividing means divides original image into a plurality of uniform image blocks (see Fig. 3).

With regard to claim 5, Yamashita et al discloses obtaining means divides image block into a plurality of uniform partial images, and obtains the partial image at a position set for each image block (see Fig. 3).

With regard to claim 6, Yamashita et al discloses generating means decreases an image resolution within a range in which a character can be visually recognized as a character on indicating means, and generates a combined image smaller than original image (see col. 3, lines 60-65).

With regard to claim 7, Yamashita et al discloses extracting means further has application data extracting means for reading application data and extracting application data (see col. 4, lines 13-18).

With regard to claim 8, Yamashita et al discloses data is application data which is formed in an application (see col. 10, lines 27-32).

Claim 9 is similarly analyzed as claim 1.

Claims 10-16 are similarly analyzed as claims 2-8.

Claim 17 is similarly analyzed as claim 1.

Claims 26-33 are similarly analyzed as claims 2-8.

Claim 34 is similarly analyzed as claim 1.

Claims 36-42 are similarly analyzed as claims 2-8.

With regard to claim 35, Yamashita et al discloses a character train recognizing step of recognizing a character train (see Fig. 1, item 16); and a replacing step of replacing a two or more sequent spaces recognized by recognizing step or a carriage return line feed control code and a plurality of spaces subsequent thereto with one space (see col. 10, lines 5-15).

Claims 36-42 are similarly analyzed as claims 2-8.

Claim 43 is similarly analyzed as claim 1.

Claims 44 and 45 are similarly analyzed as claim 35.
